Tables of Contents

THE HERO
VOLUME I, NUMBER 1

Nostalgia for Paradise, by Mircea Eliade Page 6

A classic exposition of the search for transcendent reality, as focused in the symbolism of the 'center'.

The Huichol and the Quest for Paradise, by Barbara Myerhoff Page 22

The journey to the sacred land of Wirikuta—a striking contemporary enactment of the ritual approach to immortality.

A Circular World: The Vision of Navajo Crafts, by Barre Toelken Page 30

An illustrated exhibition of how the making of Navajo artifacts offers a radical alternative to our linear, utilitarian perspective.

The World of the Hero, by P.L. Travers Page 42

An exploration of the dimensions of mythic heroism, and a suggestion that we may well tailor the heroic matrix to fit our own lives as well.

Psychotherapy and the Sacred, by Jacob Needleman Page 52

Psychotherapy has become a quasi-religion, but can it mediate the sacred in the manner of the great religious traditions?

The Tragic Hero: An Image of Individuation, by Edward Edinger Page 66

Heroic metamorphosis, as an apt image of the individual's struggle for personal wholeness.

The Diamond Lens of Fable, by Minor White Page 75

The Meaning of Tradition: A Conversation with Huston Smith Page 80

An interview with the author of The Religions of Man probing the significance of religious tradition.

MAGIC
VOLUME I, NUMBER 2

Balancing between Worlds: The Shaman's Calling by Barbara G. Myerhoff 6

The shaman's special vocation and grace: to maintain an equilibrium between the worlds that sustain human existence.

Taking Castaneda Seriously by Daniel C. Noel 14

The quandary about how to approach Castaneda's work itself gives a clue to the direction of the path with heart.

The Way of the Wizard by Robert S. Ellwood, Jr. 24

The persistence of wizardry into our time recalls the enduring connection between the magician and religious vision.

Magic, Sacrifice, and Tradition: Preliminary Notes by Jacob Needleman 30

Ground-breaking suggestions toward a new understanding of the traditional meaning of magic and sacrifice and their intimate relation to the religious quest.

The Bite of the Hunter's Ghost by Victor W. Turner 42

The techniques of an African chimbuki may tell us a great deal about our own cultural notions of sickness, health, and the dynamics of curing.

Narcissus by Thomas W. Moore 50

A fresh reading of this classic myth finds it more a tale of positive self-transformation than a tragic story of destructive self-love.

Divine Law, Human Justice by Christmas Humphreys 62

The difference between the two, explored by a man who is both a judge and one of the West's leading Buddhist scholars.

Living Myths: A Conversation with Joseph Campbell 70

The ways in which myths endure and are lived today; readers familiar with Campbell's work may discover a few surprises in this candid discussion.

Some PARABOLA favorites—

LABYRINTH

VOLUME 17, NO. 2

Labyrinth weaves together an interview with Joseph Chilton Pierce, articles on making an Orthodox rosary, the basketry of the Tohono O'odham, knots and ornaments, the Minotaur, the labyrinthine structure of the ear, board games, caves, and more from Frederick Franck, Ananda Coomaraswamy, Jorge Luis Borges and others, plus stories from Greek, Jewish, Hindu, European and other traditions.

ADDICTION

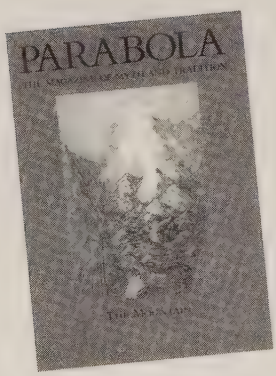
VOLUME 12, NO. 2

Robert Aitken, Victor Danner, A.R. Orage, and others look at various forms of addiction from a physical, emotional, material, and spiritual point of view; interviews with Marion Woodman and Pauline de Dampierre.

TRIAD

VOLUME 14, NO. 4

This beautiful issue explores the three elemental forces at work in creation as revealed in the Native American pipe ceremony, Gregorian chant, Buddhism, art and architecture, traditional folktales and more. Also featured are excerpts from Plato, the Hindu Upanishads and G.I. Gurdjieff on the ancient analogy of the horse, carriage and driver for the three forces at work within a human being.



THE MOUNTAIN

VOLUME 13, NO. 4

Long a symbol of the meeting place between heaven and earth, The Mountain features extensive excerpts from René Daumal's classic book, Mount Analogue, articles on the four sacred mountains of the Navajo, the mountain trigram of the I Ching, holy mountains in Tibetan Buddhism, Christian iconography, Dante's Divine Comedy, and more, including interviews with Jack Daumal and Thubten Jigme Norbu, brother of the Dalai Lama.

THE CREATIVE RESPONSE

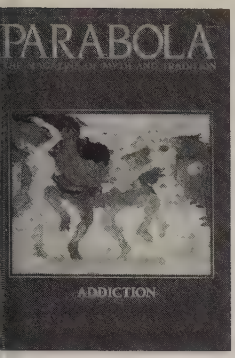
VOLUME 13, NO. 1

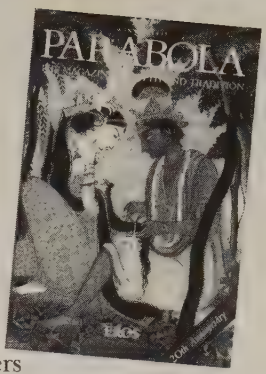
Art as a response to life in Japanese Noh theater, Islam, South Asian and Native American traditions, and modern painting. With Seyyed Hossein Nasr, P.L. Travers, Anne Twitty, and Roger Lipsey. Interview with Paul Reynard.

SLEEP

VOLUME 7, NO. 1

Sleep features a fascinating conversation between William Segal and Tibetan physician and monk Dr. Yeshi Donden on sleep and our inner landscape; an interview with Joseph Campbell on "waking up" from the sleep of ordinary life; contributions from Mircea Eliade, P.L. Travers, Kathleen Raine, and P.D. Ouspensky; Hoopa, Russian, Chinese, African, Celtic, and Jewish myths and stories; and much more.





EROS

VOLUME 20, NO. 4

Special 20th Anniversary issue. Ken Wilbur, Harriet Eisman, Christopher Bamford, and others explore human sexuality and the life of the spirit in ancient myths of erotic desire, songs of the troubadours, and rites of Dionysus; interview with Jacob Needleman. Eight pages of traditional erotic art.

LANGUAGE AND MEANING

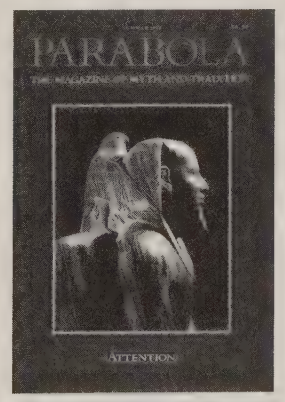
VOLUME 20, NO. 3

This award-winning issue explores the rhythm and power of language as found in Irish storytelling, the Delphic oracle, Hindu poetics, mantras, demonic books, the language of the deaf, puns, the works of the Desert Fathers and more; an interview with William Segal; classic reprints from Mircea Eliade, René Daumal, and Martin Buber; and African, Mayan, Buddhist and Jewish folktales.

DEATH

VOLUME 2, NO. 1

Isaac Bashevis Singer, David Steindl-Rast, Robert Thurman, and others look at death and rituals for the dead and dying in different cultures—Irish wakes; the Sioux shamanic tradition; rites from Tibet, Aboriginal Australia, and the Aztecs.



ATTENTION

VOLUME 15, NO. 2

The vital force of attention and the practice of mindfulness are explored in Zen Buddhism, Islam, music, Hindu prayer, mystical Christianity and the Philokalia, walking, listening to silence and more by Aldous Huxley, Nadia Boulanger, J. Krishnamurti, Linda Hogan, William Segal, P.L. Travers and others. Includes stories from Mexican, Islamic and Zen traditions.
